WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Fall Cultivation

There are several reasons why it pays well to work stubble land in the fall. A cut with the tiller disc or disc in the fall breaks up the straw and gets some of it into the top of the soil so that it can start to decompose. This makes it much easier to work the land in the spring. A reasonably shallow cut with one of these disc implements will weed seeds in a position where they can start to grow as soon as there is enough moisture.

Where deep rooted perennials such as Canada and Sow Thistle, Tansy, Foxglove, etc., are a problem, deeper cultivation with a tiller or cultivator is better. One last operation in the fall is very important in control of these weeds. On summerfallow the cultivator is the best implement as it leaves the soil ridged and cloddy and helps to prevent erosion.

Unless the straw is to be picked up for feed or bedding, a straw spreader should be used to hurry and partly because of the types of machinery being used. While it is true that every minute counts at harvest time, we should remember that there is no point in trying to save a minute and ending up by losing hours, days, or even lives. Take time to see that it is safe to make a move and you will probably save both time and trouble. Particularly watch out for belts and moving parts on machinery and don't wear loose or floppy clothing when working around machines such as combines. Children should be kept away from all machinery.

Farm Safety

Fall is a dangerous time on the farm according to a Safety Council report. This is partly due to hurry and partly because of the types of machinery being used. While it is true that every minute counts at harvest time, we should remember that there is no point in trying to save a minute and ending up by losing hours, days, or even lives. Take time to see that it is safe to make a move and you will probably save both time and trouble. Particularly watch out for belts and moving parts on machinery and don't wear loose or floppy clothing when working around machines such as combines. Children should be kept away from all machinery.

Catch Those Weed Seeds

Weeds are one of the most expensive items on the farm and still we see combines going over the fields with the weed seeds being allowed to drop back onto the field. Most combines have a stand under the weed spout to put a bag or container on to catch the seeds. By using this the seeds can be removed from the field and either ground up and fed to livestock or destroyed. This is surely a much better way to handle weed seeds than letting them go back onto the field to increase the weed problem there.

HELPING YOUNG FARMERS

One of the most difficult problems facing farm young people in Canada today is that of becoming established on their own farms. The amount of capital required has risen to such a degree that unless the young man can take over his father's land or receive assistance from him, the chances of securing sufficient land and machinery to make up an economic unit are small. No form of credit is readily available to the young man who has little security with the result that the majority of land that is being sold is going to the larger operators. There is a continued drift of farm young people to the cities, a steady increase in the average age of farmers and a gradual increase in the size of the average farm.

Many presentations have been made by farmers and farm organizations calling upon federal or provincial governments to set up an agency to make long-term loans to young farmers at a low rate of interest. Not so long ago the Alberta government indicated an interest in the matter. In Quebec, however, such an agency has been in operation since 1937. The primary function of the Quebec Farm Credit Bureau is to grant loans to farmers for a long term at a very low interest rate (2.5 per cent). The fact that loans may be made up to 75 percent of the property's value encourages the purchase of new farms and enables young farmers to become established. Since its inception $104 million has been loaned of which about $55 million has gone to enable farmers' sons to become established on new land. Last year alone over $8 million went for this purpose. The fact that since 1937 losses have amounted to only $691 or less than 7 cents on every $10,000 loaned is an indication of the soundness of the plan and the reliability of the borrowers.

Alberta farmers look forward to the establishment of a similar plan here in Alberta.

News Roundup From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — The opening days of the special session of the Alberta legislature last week gave no indication that members had just gone through the bitter election campaign in the province's history.

One might have expected a continuation of the accusations, insinuations and relentless criticism which marked the last session of the house and the election race that followed.

But instead of snarling at each other, all was sweetness and brotherhood between opposing political factions—at least for the first three days of the session.

J. Harper Prowse, Alberta Liberal leader, promised that his 15 members would do everything possible to help the government finish the session quickly.

The Liberal leader made his address in the throne speech debate a short one, with little criticism of the government, and said he hoped other members would take as little time as possible.

The other members followed his lead on the first day of debate. In fact, the speeches were kept so short that the house adjourned about an hour before the regular closing time. Seven members entered the debate, and when they were finished there were no others ready to go ahead.

Premier Manning entered into the friendly spirit by congratulating the newly-elected members of the legislature, and made particular mention of the 14 new opposition members.

Mr. Prowse criticized the premier on one point, but did it in a constructive way that didn't bring the jeers and shouts which often come from the Social Credit side when the opposition is taking the government to task.

The Liberal leader said he had read reports that The Calgary Herald and The Edmonton Journal had been barred from sending reporters to the premier's press conferences.

The two papers were excluded last week when Premier Manning called a press conference to announce the personnel of the royal commission which will investigate charges made against the government during the election campaign.

Mr. Prowse said he could understand the premier being annoyed and angry with the two papers, since they hadn't seen things his way in the election. But, he said, the premier holds press conferences not as an individual but as leader of the government.

He urged the premier to reconsider, stating that his action was not hurting the papers. He said the public is being hurt by being denied full access to the news.

Premier Manning scribbled notes all the time Mr. Prowse talked. He rose to enter the debate as soon as Mr. Prowse finished, but made no mention of press conferences. He confined himself mainly to outlining the legislation his government proposes to introduce.

The Speech from the Throne, read by Lieutenant-Governor Bowlen on opening day, indicated that the session will deal mainly with business left over from the last house.

The main item of business is the bill which would permit farmers to establish producer-controlled marketing boards for the marketing of certain agricultural products.

A meeting of the house agriculture committee was to begin on Monday of this week to study the bill and hear representation from interested farm groups. Premier Manning said some changes have been made since the bill was brought before the last session, but he didn't indicate what they might be.

The Alberta Federation of Agriculture was expected to continue its argument for relaxed voting restrictions to make it easier to establish a marketing board. Under the bill as presented to the last house, 51 per cent of those eligible to vote would have to favor setting up a board.

A new record was set when Rev. Peter Dawson, Special Cre-

A Barrel of Flour

For some time there have been rumors that a change might eventually be made in the unit of flour measurement which has always been used by Canadian millers. Now comes word that the principal Canadian flour mills may shortly follow the example of the U.S.A. in doing away with what is generally regarded as an out-dated inconvenient unit, the 196 pound barrel.

If they do, they will adopt the decimal system of packing flour in larger sizes. At present quotations are based upon such fractions of the barrel as 98 pounds and 49 pounds which would then become 100 pound and 50 pound lots. In use for some time have been the 10 pound bags and eventually, no doubt, the decimal system would be used for other smaller sized packages as well.

Any change such as this which involves a unit of measurement usually takes years to bring about for time-honored and well-established systems, whatever they are, die hard. But should the example be set by the larger mills, which account for approximately 80 per cent of the milling capacity, there is little doubt that the proposed change will find general acceptance in Canada; and so is likely, before long, to pass the old familiar term: a barrel of flour.

Easy For The Queasy

Travelers have been suffering from queasy feelings caused by motion sickness probably since the time that Noah launched his ark and Caesar rode through the streets of Rome in a chariot. Today, voyagers may still suffer from that ancient disease, as any methodical, rapid change in motion and speed—whether it be on a ship, plane, merry-go-round or even a car—produces similar effects on the body.

Almost all of the trouble is due to the body's organ of balance, the inner ear, a structure about the size of a small key and reminiscent of a pretzel in shape. It reacts to abrupt changes by producing symptoms such as nausea, pallor and cold sweating.

Canadian scientist R. L. Noble and other researchers investigated the extensive motion sickness problem during World War II and found remedies that gave partial aid to at least some travelers.

Recently, the chemical laboratories came up with some new harmless compounds that proved to be very effective during tests conducted by the U. S. Armed Forces. Of the drugs examined, the investigators were particularly impressed with one called Bonamine—the only drug that gave 24-hour protection against motion sickness with a single dose! As this drug is now available for civilian use, it will be very easy for the otherwise queasy traveler to enjoy the far-flung wonders of the world—without the ancient hazard of motion sickness.

Safety Sam Says...

Don't hold up traffic, Let the other driver make a left hand turn through your lane

You are proceeding with the green light through an intersection. You see a motorist trying to make a left turn. Do you make it a habit to slow down and wave him through?

This courteous act only takes a few short seconds of your time and often such an act unblocks the way for other motorists turning left through the intersection.

So, spare 5 seconds for courtesy and wave the motorist through whenever you can. He'll appreciate your kindness and you'll be pleased with yourself, too.

Do you need a FARM POND?

If you run short of water in the late summer on your farm, you can probably cure the trouble for good with a well-placed farm pond.

Built where it will catch the spring run-off, your farm pond would provide a ready supply of drinking water for your cattle and a useful reservoir in times of drought. It's a boon to any type of farming, as many Canadian farmers have already discovered.

Don't let a shortage of ready cash delay this or any other farm improvement that will make your farm a better farm. Discuss your needs with your local B of M manager. He'll gladly tell you what a Farm Improvement Loan can do for your farm—how it can boost your profits and save you time and work.

FUA TAKES ACTION RE 8 BUSHEL QUOTA

The following statement was issued from FUA headquarters on August 8.

"It has been brought to our attention that there are still a number of Elevator points in Alberta where the delivery of the 8 bushel quota for the 1954 crop year has not yet been completed because of lack of space. The situation is aggravated by late deliveries being much heavier than anticipated.

"The FUA has urged the Wheat Board to hold the 1954 quota open until sufficient cars can be provided to make space available for the full 8 bushels. "Assurance has now been received that this will be done as far as possible. Farmers having difficulty in delivering the balance of their 8 bushel quota should contact the FUA head office in Edmonton."
